

STATE OF ARIZONA
OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL
SPECIAL INVESTIGATIONS SECTION REPORT

DATE WRITTEN BY AGENT: 8/22/2012

LF NUMBER: P-2012-000345
Document#2839406

CASE NAME: PCSO Complaint

REPORT TYPE: Summary of allegations against Orozco

AGENT: Dan Woods DW

SUPERVISOR: Mike Edwards ME

PAGE 1 OF 14 PAGES

Based on the information received during the investigation, I prepared the below summary of activities related to the allegations against Jose Orozco. The allegations against Paul Babeu are summarized in a separate report (document #2810074).

2006

In late 2006, Jose Orozco and Paul Babeu met online and started dating. When they stopped dating 2-3 months later, Babeu did not ask Orozco to sign a non-disclosure agreement.

2007

In circa 9/2007, Orozco and Babeu started dating again.

2008

In 4/2008, Orozco joined Babeu's re-election campaign as a volunteer and assumed administration of Babeu's campaign website, which was accessed through the domain, sheriffpaul.com, or the Uniform Resource Locator (URL), <http://www.sheriffpaul.com>¹. The domain and website were previously established and maintained by another campaign volunteer, Ray Ragan, but Ragan was no longer available to maintain the website.

2009

On 11/15/2009 at 0558 hours, a Pinal County deputy saw Orozco sitting in a parked car in the cul-de-sac near Babeu's house. Orozco told the deputy he was in the area visiting someone but refused to say whom he was visiting because the person was “prominent.” During an interview on 7/20/2012, Orozco said that when he visited Babeu, he sometimes spent up to 40 minutes outside Babeu’s house before leaving. Orozco added that he did this to use his cell phone or work on paperwork.

¹ The domain, sheriffpaul.com, is technically not a website – it serves as one part of a user friendly pointer to a website, which prevents website visitors from having to remember the more cumbersome Internet Protocol (IP) address associated with the website. For example, on 8/21/2012, someone who visited the website accessed through the URL, <http://www.sheriffpaul.com>, could have instead gone directly to 184.168.59.131:80 and reached the same website. Also, the owner of a domain can configure that domain to point to virtually any website on Internet; therefore, the owner of a domain does not necessarily own the website to which the domain points.

In circa 2009-2010, Kurt Cusanovich and Dwayne St. Jacques, who were personal friends to Orozco at the time, went to a birthday party at a Phoenix nightclub called Amsterdam. While they were at the nightclub they saw Babeu. The next day, Cusanovich received a text message from Orozco in which Orozco wrote that he heard Cusanovich was at the nightclub and asked Cusanovich if he saw Babeu with anyone.

2010

During the summer of 2010, Cusanovich was at a barbecue with several other friends. Babeu was also at the barbecue but Orozco was not invited. While at the barbecue Cusanovich received a text message from Orozco that asked, “Who is Paul talking to?” Cusanovich was “shocked” by this text message because Cusanovich never told Orozco where he was; Cusanovich assumed Orozco followed Babeu to the barbecue and knew Cusanovich was also at the barbecue because he saw Cusanovich’s car when he arrived. Cusanovich described Orozco as being “infatuated” with Babeu.

In 9/2010, Orozco created and started managing a campaign Facebook page, sheriffpaulbabeu, and a Twitter account, @PaulBabeuAZ. At the time, Orozco also posted information on the Facebook page and “tweeted” from the Twitter account.

In 11/2010, Orozco created and managed a campaign Piryx² account to replace the PayPal account the campaign was using at the time.

FEBRUARY 2011

In 2/2011, Orozco sent at least two emails to Babeu that asked if Babeu wanted specific content posted to the website (document#2811134). During an interview on 3/8/2012, Orozco said he never did anything on the website without Babeu’s permission.

MARCH 2011

On 3/13/2011 at 2133 hours, Orozco sent an email to Babeu that asked if Babeu wanted a particular news story posted to the website.

² Piryx is analogous to PayPal in that it enables people to make online payments or donations to the campaign.

On 3/31/2011 at 0014 hours, Orozco sent an email to Babeu and Maile Gaffney that asked Maile if she changed the password to the Facebook fan page. Babeu replied and confirmed the password was changed and added that Maile could manage the Facebook fan page by herself. At this point, Orozco no longer had access to the Facebook fan page.

APRIL 2011

In 4/2011, Orozco sent at least three emails to Babeu that asked if Babeu wanted specific content posted to the website (document#2811134). During an interview on 3/8/2012, Orozco said he never did anything on the website without Babeu's permission.

During an interview on 3/1/2012, Babeu said several months before 9/2011 he was in Tucson to attend a political dinner and visit some friends when Orozco "went extreme crazy jealous." Orozco told Babeu on the phone that he was going to expose him and let everyone know what a cheater he was.

On 4/2/2011 at 0027 hours, according to pictures of Orozco's cell phone, which appeared in the New Times, Orozco sent a text message to Babeu that read, "im headed to ur house." After Babeu apparently did not reply, Orozco sent another text message at 0030 hours that read, "if you don't wana answer. I will wait at your house." At 0031 hours, Babeu replied, "I'm in tucson with congressman Jim Kolbe...talking about politics." Orozco replied, "Arr you gona tell me the true papi?" and "Papi, arr yoi w/ a guy this time?..."³ and "papi, im telling u directlu. I think u r w/ a guy, cause more then two hours and not not answer, u..."⁴

In circa 4/2011, several consultants told Babeu that the campaign website was sub-standard and needed to be updated if Babeu wanted to run for higher office.

On 4/12/2011, the campaign hired a paid consultant, Heather Lauer, to take over, centralize, and manage the campaign's online presence. This included all websites, Facebook accounts, and Twitter accounts.

In circa 4/2011, the campaign started to transition the campaign website and the Facebook and Twitter accounts away from Orozco to Lauer. Babeu believed his personal and private relationship with Orozco "clouded" what the campaign was trying to achieve with the transition. Babeu said he was sensitive to this and encouraged the campaign to proceed in a manner that would not harm Orozco's feelings. According to Babeu, Orozco became very possessive of the website and resisted turning it over to anyone.

³ The rest of the text message is not visible in the picture.

⁴ The rest of the text message is not visible in the picture.

On 4/26/2011 at 2236 hours, Babeu sent an introductory email to Lauer and Orozco. In the email, Babeu asked Orozco to facilitate Lauer's "direct access" to the website.

On 4/26/2011 at 2243 hours, Babeu sent an email to Lauer and copied Maile Gaffney, Tim Gaffney, Chris DeRose, Cheryl Chase, Tysen Schlink, and Jesse Yescalis. In the email, Babeu provided the login and password for his personal Facebook page and indicated that Maile Gaffney would provide the same information for the Facebook fan page. Babeu also indicated that the campaign needed to consolidate all digital and social media accounts.

On 4/27/2011 at 1107 hours, Maile Gaffney provided Lauer with the usernames and passwords for Babeu's Facebook and Twitter accounts.

Babeu said Orozco became "very possessive" of the website's content, which Babeu maintained was his property since it was originally created by Ray Ragan and countless other campaign volunteers. Babeu added that the content included his photographs, the colors and branding for his campaign, and messages from him. Babeu also said Orozco had a hard time understanding that just because Orozco worked on the website it didn't mean the content belonged to him. Orozco said he worked hard on the website as an unpaid volunteer and wasn't about to just turn it over to a paid consultant.

On 4/27/2011 at 1640 hours, Orozco sent an email to Babeu and Lauer and wrote that he didn't have clear details regarding Lauer's role and asked Babeu if Lauer was taking over the website. During an interview on 5/1/2012, Babeu said he had already personally explained Lauer's role to Orozco and that Orozco was pretending not to have any idea.

On 4/27/2011 at 2207 hours, Lauer replied and explained to Orozco that she would be creating a landing page for an online fundraising test.

On 4/28/2011 at 0720 hours, Orozco provided Lauer and several others on the campaign the username and password for the file transfer protocol (FTP) server⁵ for the website.

On 4/28/2011 at 0946 hours, Orozco forwarded Lauer's email to Babeu and asked, "Can you be honest and tell me what's going on? Talk straight."

During an interview on 3/1/2012, Babeu said Orozco threatened to post information about corruption and Babeu being gay on the campaign website if Babeu went through with the transition away from Orozco to a paid consultant. Babeu said the threats were in person and sometimes via text message; however, Babeu upgraded his phone and did not preserve any of the text messages. After numerous verbal arguments, Babeu was finally able to convince Orozco that the website and its contents belonged to the campaign.

⁵ The FTP server is used to transfer files to and from the web server and is used to change a website's content. It is not used to make any changes to the domain such as adding email accounts or editing Domain Name System (DNS) settings (changing where the domain points).

MAY 2011

On 5/1/2011 and 5/2/2011, Orozco registered the following 11 domains related to Paul Babeu. Orozco used approximately $132 of his own money to pay for the domains and never requested reimbursement from the campaign:

1. governorpaul.com
2. governorbabeu.com
3. paulbabeu.us
4. governorpaulbabeu.us
5. azgovernorbabeu.com
6. paulbabeuaz.com
7. paul-babeu.com
8. azgovernorpaul.com
9. azpaulbabeu.com
10. sheriffpaulbabeu.com
11. paulbabeu.co

On 5/2/2011 at 1028 hours, Lauer sent an email to Orozco that requested access to the campaign Piryx account.

On 5/4/2011 at 1123 hours, after not receiving a reply from Orozco, Lauer forwarded her original request to Tysen Schlink.

On 5/26/2011 at 1402 hours, Tysen Schlink sent an email to Orozco and Babeu that asked Orozco to give Lauer access to the sheriffpaul.com domain so she could setup an email address from which Lauer could send 3,000 emails to supporters⁶.

On 5/26/2011 at 1427 hours, Lauer added that she needed access to where the domain was registered⁷ so she could create the email address.

⁶ At this point, Lauer only had access to the FTP server, which only enabled her to transfer files to and from the web server. It did not enable her to create email addresses for the domain and Lauer needed an email address that ended with "@sheriffpaul.com."

⁷ The domain was registered through domain registrar, GoDaddy.

On 5/26/2011 at 1441 hours, rather than giving Lauer access, Orozco suggested that Lauer use the email address, pbabeu[REDACTED]@gmail.com, to send emails to supporters. Orozco refused to give Lauer access to the GoDaddy account because he had "many other domains" in the same GoDaddy account⁸. As one alternative, Orozco said he could create the email address for Lauer, and as another alternative, Orozco said Lauer could create her own GoDaddy account and he could transfer the domain to her account. Lauer opted to provide Orozco with her GoDaddy account information so that Orozco could transfer the domain to her.

On 5/26/2011 at 2201 hours, Orozco initiated the transfer of the domain, sheriffpaul.com, from his GoDaddy account to Lauer's GoDaddy account. This was one month after Babeu had first asked Orozco to facilitate Lauer's direct access to the website.

On 5/27/2011 at 0724 hours, Orozco indicated the domain transfer was complete and that Lauer had total control of the website from this point on.

Sometime prior to releasing the domain, Orozco made a copy of the website's content, which according to Babeu, belonged to the campaign.

In circa 5/2011, Orozco placed the duplicate copy of the campaign's website online and directed one of the 11 domains he registered, paulbabeu.co, at the website.

Babeu said when things started to "go south" between him and Orozco, Orozco told Babeu that he needed to serve as a reference for new business, and that Orozco would use a separate website, which Babeu described as a "shadow" website accessed through paulbabeu.co, as an example of what Orozco could do for other candidates. Babeu said the shadow website would also be used to safeguard all the information and content the campaign developed over the years, and to serve as a data mining source from which the campaign could retrieve information as needed.

By this time, Lauer had control of the domain, sheriffpaul.com; the Twitter account, @PaulBabeuAZ; and the Facebook account, PaulBabeuAZ. Even though Orozco no longer had control over these resources, nobody from the campaign expressed any concern related to Orozco, or anyone else, having continued access to the accounts. Passwords were not changed to prevent access. Orozco and others would simply lose access if and when passwords were changed due to some other process and there was no reason to re-share the new password.

⁸ Records from GoDaddy indicate that in 5/2011, Orozco had 12 domains in his GoDaddy account and all of them were related to Paul Babeu (the 11 previously listed and sheriffpaul.com).

During an interview on 3/1/2012, Babeu also said that “tweeting” was one of the things the campaign allowed Orozco to do to keep him as a volunteer.

JUNE 2011

In circa 6/2011, Orozco moved from [REDACTED] W Ivanhoe, Chandler, to [REDACTED] W Summit Place, Chandler. Orozco said he did not provide Babeu with his new address.

On 6/1/2011 at 2325 hours, Orozco sent an email to Lauer that indicated Orozco had a backup copy of the original campaign website at paulbabeu.co.⁹

On 6/2/2011 at 0819 hours, Lauer sent an email to Orozco that indicated she was having trouble with GoDaddy and would therefore direct web visitors from the sheriffpaul.com domain to the paulbabeu.co. domain.¹⁰

On 6/10/2011 at 0101 hours, Orozco sent an email to Babeu and accused him of cheating with other men. Orozco attached pictures of other men and a screen capture of Babeu’s profile from adam4adam.com. Babeu interpreted the email as another example of how Orozco had no boundaries, and was continuing to threaten Babeu, not for money, but to use Babeu’s personal property and content to misrepresent, defame, and slander Babeu.

On 6/25/2011 at 1403 hours, Orozco sent an email to Babeu that asked if Babeu wanted a particular news story posted to the website.

JULY 2011

On 7/1/2011, Lauer finished the new website and directed sheriffpaul.com visitors to the new website. Lauer also sent Orozco an email that asked him to direct paulbabeu.co visitors to the new website. Orozco refused and said he wanted to keep paulbabeu.co pointed to the old campaign website to promote his website development business.

Lauer said she didn’t know what to do about Orozco refusing to turn over the paulbabeu.co domain. Lauer said whenever she identified an obstacle or expressed a concern related to Orozco she never received a response, and Babeu seemed hesitant to push Orozco too hard. Lauer described this as an “implied sensitivity” surrounding Orozco.

⁹ This email indicates that Orozco copied the campaign’s data from the web server – the same data that was originally created by Ray Ragan and countless other campaign volunteers (and maintained by Orozco).

¹⁰ At this point, both www.sheriffpaul.com and www.paulbabeu.co were pointing to the same website (the original campaign website that Ragan created and Orozco maintained and copied).

Lauer managed the new campaign website accessed through sheriffpaul.com and Orozco managed the previous version of the campaign website accessed through paulbabeu.co. The website accessed through paulbabeu.co continued to receive donations using the campaign's Piryx account and continued to receive expressions of support for Sheriff Paul Babeu.

During separate interviews, Lauer and Babeu both stated that even though Orozco managed a separate campaign website accessed through paulbabeu.co, it was an official campaign website since it still used all of the original branding from the campaign and contained all of the campaign's original content. In addition, Orozco would not post anything to the website without first obtaining permission from Babeu.

On 7/3/2011 at 1619 hours, Lauer asked Orozco if he owned the domains, sheriffpaul.net, sheriffpaul.org, or any other URL related to Babeu. Lauer added that the campaign was trying to get everything streamlined and forwarded to sheriffpaul.com so there would not be any public confusion.

On 7/5/2011 at 1416 hours, Orozco replied and said, "I don't have idea about those ones. I own other but it's down." Orozco did not reveal that he owned 11 other domains related to Babeu.

On 7/8/2011, Jose Orozco formed Website Results, LLC. During an interview on 3/1/2012, Babeu recalled discussing with Orozco possible names for Orozco's new company.

In 7/2011, Orozco forwarded to Babeu a support form that was submitted via the website. Orozco also sent an email to Babeu that asked if Babeu wanted a particular news story posted to the website.

AUGUST 2011

On 8/6/2011, Orozco and two associates attended the "Women of the West" campaign fundraising event in Maricopa, AZ. The entrance fee was $50 per person, but Orozco had two free tickets so his party only had to pay one $50 fee. The campaign processed the $50 entry fee as a campaign donation from Orozco. This required Orozco, or someone acting on his behalf, to complete a donation form and provide Orozco's new address on Summit. This donation also caused Orozco to be added to the list of people who would later receive a campaign Christmas card.

On 8/13/2011 at 2344 hours, Orozco sent the below email to Babeu:

"You had dinner at 6pm. it's 10:37pm, 4 hrs later, what you doing? I left a few messages ... and your turned your phone off. why? are you doing ok? I know you will read text before bed, please text me back before bed, im worried now, or at least you are doing unethical things ... if you wont text me back you may not want me to pick you to the airport then? i dont think so. i will contact your brother to see if you are doing ok."

On 8/19/2011 at 0856 hours, Orozco sent the below email to Babeu:

"papi, wish you appreciate all my work I've done for you. I am updating website and improvements for you. I really like you and love you papi. I miss when we dont chat/text."

In 8/2011, Orozco forwarded to Babeu at least two messages addressed to Sheriff Babeu that were submitted to the website.

According to Babeu, his relationship with Orozco was back and forth from positive to negative throughout the relationship.

SEPTEMBER 2011

According to Babeu, Orozco became increasingly angry as Orozco responded to a "lack of attention."

On 9/3/2011, during the early evening, Babeu and Orozco had an argument about the future of their relationship. The argument ended with the two breaking up. Babeu asked Orozco not to share their private relationship with anyone but Orozco refused.

According to Babeu, since Orozco had been threatening for months to post negative information via Twitter and the campaign website, Babeu was always checking the campaign website and Twitter feed.

On 9/4/2011 at 0254 hours, the postmaster at Twitter notified Lauer that the email address associated with the campaign Twitter account, @PaulBabeuAZ, had been changed. Lauer was traveling and out of signal range so she did not actually receive this email until later.

On 9/4/2011, someone also changed the password on the campaign Piryx account, which prevented the campaign from accessing the account. At the time, Orozco was the administrator for the account.

On or about 9/4/2011, Babeu received several text messages from friends that asked Babeu if he was ok. Babeu responded that he was fine and asked why they were asking such an odd question. Babeu's friends said they observed a strange tweet from Babeu's Twitter account about Babeu having personal problems and another tweet directing people to paulbabeu.co. Babeu checked his Twitter feed and saw tweets that read, "Personal problems with Paul Babeu" and "Ethical issues on paulbabeu.co."

On or about 9/4/2011, Babeu also checked the website accessed through paulbabeu.co and noticed several negative news articles and a link to his adam4adam profile.

Babeu said as soon as he noticed negative content on Twitter and the website, he immediately started calling people, including Kurt Cusanovich and [REDACTED], to ask them to contact Orozco to try and get him to stop. Cusanovich was in California so he told Babeu he would talk to Orozco when he returned.

On 9/4/2011 at 0207 hours and again at 0209 hours, Babeu called Orozco and pleaded with him to stop.

On 9/4/2011 at 0223 hours, [REDACTED] called Orozco but Orozco hung up on [REDACTED] before [REDACTED] could finish introducing himself.

On or about 9/4/2011, after Cusanovich returned home from California, Cusanovich asked Orozco what was going on with Babeu. Orozco told Cusanovich that Babeu was having an affair and showed Cusanovich printed pictures and text messages that were sent between Babeu and a fictional man Orozco said he impersonated. Cusanovich said Orozco had created an online persona with a different name, account, and email address to "flirt" with Babeu and to "lead him on." Cusanovich described what Orozco did as "pretty elaborate."

According to Cusanovich, Orozco told Cusanovich that Orozco and one of Babeu's ex-boyfriends were going to go to the New Times to "out" Babeu. Orozco said they were going to "post it on the website." Cusanovich told Orozco that impersonating someone and then trying to "blackmail" them was wrong and added that he and Babeu should try and talk through their differences. Orozco disagreed and kept saying Babeu "had to pay for what he did" referring to the alleged affair. Cusanovich said Orozco was "beyond rational thinking" and kept repeating that Babeu "had to pay."

On 9/4/2011 at 0845 hours, Lauer received a text message from Babeu that asked for the Twitter account username and password. Lauer was still out of signal range so she did not receive this text message until later.

On 9/4/2011 at 1100 hours, Babeu sent a text message to Orozco that read, "You can never have business after this and you will harm me and many others in the process...including yourself & your family."

On 9/4/2011 at 1102 hours, Babeu sent a text message to Orozco that read, "And you say you have loved me? Papi...this is no good."¹¹

On 9/4/2011 between 1106 hours and 1255 hours¹², Orozco and Babeu had the attached text exchange in which Babeu wrote, among other messages, "You have threatened w/twitter and website papi. I have always tried to show love." Orozco replied, "that's not threat. I'm going to express myself. Can I have free speech? Show facts, true story."

On 9/4/2011 at 1424 hours, Lauer was back in signal range and sent a text message to Babeu in which she provided the Twitter username, @PaulBabeuAZ. Lauer added that the password had been changed and that she could not access the account. Lauer also noticed that a tweet was posted from the Twitter account that directed people to paulbabeu.co. Lauer asked Babeu to ask Orozco if he changed the Twitter account password.

On 9/4/2011 at 1424 hours, Babeu replied to Lauer and wrote, "He did...this has got a bit crazy...sorry. He's hijacked the account...insane. I've filed and imposture complaint to permanently suspend that twitter account."

On 9/4/2011 at 1527 hours, Lauer sent an email to Orozco and asked if he changed the password to the Twitter account, @PaulBabeuAZ, because she was no longer able to access it. Lauer added that the account was "the account that Paul [Babeu] and I post from." Lauer did not receive a response.

On or about 9/4/2011, Lauer visited the website accessed through paulbabeu.co and noticed the site look generally the same as she remembered but included a link to Babeu's adam4adam profile in the sidebar. During an interview with Babeu on 3/1/2012, Babeu provided screen captures of the unauthorized tweets and a screen capture of the altered website. The screen capture of the altered website reflected a date and time of 9/5/2011 at 1942 hours.

¹¹ This text message appears in the New Times article, but is one of several relevant text messages that were not included in the list of text messages that A.D. Horan provided to investigators.

¹² According to the screen captures of Orozco's phone from the New Times, the time stamps on the attached printout, which was provided by A.D. Horan, appear to report times in a different time zone as they are one hour behind the times as recorded on Orozco's phone.

Lauer reviewed the screen captures and immediately recognized them as matching the tweets and website she observed on or about 9/4/2011. In addition to the link to the adam4adam profile, Lauer specifically identified five headlines on the website that the campaign would have never approved. Lauer also recalled that the Twitter username was changed from @PaulBabeuAZ to @PauBabeAZ.

On 9/5/2011 at 1133 hours, Babeu sent an email to his friend and attorney, Chris DeRose, to ask for help.

On 9/6/2011 at 0720 hours, Lauer sent a text message to Babeu that indicated Orozco also "hijacked" the Piryx account.

On 9/6/2011 at 0846 hours, Babeu sent a text message to Orozco that read, "You and Website Results, LLC will be sued...you have crossed the line. Better get an attorney. Your brother will also be contacted."

On 9/6/2011 at 0754 hours, Babeu's attorney, Chris DeRose, sent Orozco a cease and desist letter demanding that Orozco, among other things, remove the offensive postings at once, return control of www.paulbabeu.co to the campaign, return control of the Piryx account, and do what is needed to help Babeu regain control of his Twitter account.

On 9/6/2011 at 1242 hours, Babeu sent an email to Chris DeRose, Cecilia Martinez, and Tim Gaffney, in which Babeu apologized for the situation [related to Orozco] and added, "...we need to end this constant weapon being used against me in my personal, professional and political life. I am so done with being threatened!..."

On 9/6/2011 at 1312 hours, the campaign was able to regain control of the Piryx account by working directly with Piryx.

On 9/6/2011 at 1515 hours, Tim Gaffney replied to an email from Tim Steller, a senior reporter for the Arizona Daily Star. When Gaffney replied to the email, he blind carbon copied (bcc) Babeu. In Steller's original email, which was included in Gaffney's reply, Steller asked if Babeu's campaign website, sheriffpaul.com, and Twitter account, PauBabeAZ, had been hacked because he saw "some weird tweets" over the weekend. Steller also asked about the website, paulbabeu.co, which Steller described as similar to sheriffpaul.com but with "slightly different material."

On 9/6/2011 at 2004 hours, Orozco sent a text message to Babeu that read, "Twitter account has the same old password. Piryx was reset by ur team. Let me know if it worked."

On or about 9/7/2011, Orozco retained attorney Melissa Weiss-Riner.

On 9/7/2011 at 1221 hours, Orozco replied to the cease and desist letter. He did not dispute the contents of the letter nor ask for clarification, but instead, Orozco wrote:

“All your demands have been met. The website www.paulbabeu.co is inactive and all content was removed. Twitter account was reestablished and informed to Sheriff Babeu. Piryx was reset by Sheriff Paul Babeu committee...”

On 9/7/2011 at 1252 hours, DeRose sent an email to Orozco that indicated the campaign was in the process of verifying the information Orozco provided.

NOVEMBER 2011

On 11/4/2011, Weiss-Riner sent a letter to Chris DeRose, in which she indicated that both Orozco and Babeu were interested in doing a simple “walk-away” and that Orozco was not interested in signing any agreements [that would prevent him from publicly disclosing his relationship with Babeu].

During an interview on 7/20/2012, Orozco was asked why Babeu wanted him to sign a non-disclosure agreement in 9/2011 but not in 2006 when they stopped seeing each other the first time. Orozco said he didn’t know. Orozco was also asked who besides him had the access and ability to make changes to the website he managed. Orozco did not answer.

DECEMBER 2011

On or about 12/19/2011, as an automated result of the 8/6/2011 campaign donation made in Orozco’s name at the Women of the West event, Orozco received a campaign Christmas card at Orozco’s address new on Summit.

JANUARY 2012

On 1/7/2012 at 1019 hours, Chino Valley News received an email notification that indicated someone had posted a comment in response to a Chino Valley News article titled, “Sheriff Paul Babeu Announces Run for CD4.” The email included a copy of the comment, which read:

“This guys portraits himself as a public service helper, as hero. The facts are his own speech and a microphone. he makes false statements and alter statistics. The real paul babeu is the one who had a profile on www.adam4adam.com advertising for sex with photos t-shirtless and dirty conversations with gays. For all conservatives, being gay is a big issue, but having a weird sexual behavior with young males and dishonesty is a really big trouble for this superstar.”

During an interview on 3/8/2012, Orozco admitted to posting a comment on the Chino Valley News article and said he did it after he received the Christmas card.

FEBRUARY 2012

On 2/16/2012, the story appeared in the New Times.

Sometime after the story broke, Cusanovich sent a picture of Orozco from Christmas time to the press. Cusanovich said he believed it was morally wrong for Orozco to “out” Babeu to the press and thought Orozco should “man-up” and face the consequences of his actions. The picture of Orozco was publicly released the next day.

On 2/20/2012 at 2222 hours, Orozco sent an email to Cusanovich. Orozco included the picture from Christmas and asked Cusanovich if he shared it with anyone. Cusanovich didn’t reply.

On 2/21/2012 at 1359 hours, Cusanovich discovered the Christmas picture on a Facebook page called, “People Against Sheriff Paul Babeu.” It was posted anonymously by someone using the name, “Artr Grsrr,” who wrote, “these are the guys releasing photos, because they never had the sheriff. dwayne and kurt wanted to have sex with the sheriff.”

MARCH 2012

During an interview on 3/1/2012, Babeu said that Orozco’s actions caused serious and irreparable damage to his name, reputation, and character. Babeu added that the campaign raised “hundreds and hundreds of thousands of dollars” and earned local, county, state, and national media, which was captured, recorded and archived, and was worth millions of dollars. Babeu said he was not sure if will ever be able to recover from what happened.

During an interview on 7/27/2012, Babeu also said he felt more than annoyed by Orozco’s actions. Babeu said he believes Orozco stole his property, impersonated him, and did so with malicious intent in order to harm him personally, professionally, and politically.

End of report.

166	9/4/11 11:55 AM	Yes, very serious threat to me. You know that.
Me	9/4/11 11:53 AM	is that threat expresing my self? What have you done wrong?
166	9/4/11 11:53 AM	No...that's personal and you know that. The only reason to do that is to ruin me and my family.
Me	9/4/11 11:50 AM	this nct threat. I m going to express myself. Can I have free speeci? Show facts, true story
Me	9/4/11 11:44 AM	Instead of straght talk, you igncred me, lied
166	9/4/11 11:44 AM	You have threatened w/twitter and website papl. I have always tried to show love
Me	9/4/11 11:41 AM	Show the love. I showed you love. No aeries.
Me	9/4/11 11:39 AM	I dont hats, neither threaten.
166	9/4/11 11:36 AM	I've been mad. Love doesn't hate or threaten. I'm sorry for any pain.
Me	9/4/11 11:34 AM	Im not politician. Brains washer wont work. Show that love, I dont see it for lst month.
Me	9/4/11 11:33 AM	I wont be small, im w/ my head up.
166	9/4/11 11:32 AM	I do care and have love for you...I truly mesnt that we can be lifelong friends. We have had so many great moments.
Me	9/4/11 11:31 AM	Its what you did yesterday, with a cold face/ feelings. You didnt care when you got out the door. Still loving you, hurting me more
166	9/4/11 11:25 AM	To meet and to talk...I don't want to throw everything away.
Me	9/4/11 11:23 AM	Dinner For what?
Me	9/4/11 11:22 AM	show me the love then w/actions, not lies.
166	9/4/11 11:22 AM	We should meet babe...let's plan dinner this week.
Me	9/4/11 11:20 AM	Ok, you dont wana work it out
166	9/4/11 11:17 AM	I've never stopped caring for you and having mush love for you. I've said I can't have this jealousy and sending text/e-mail.
Me	9/4/11 11:14 AM	I dont understand what u mean. You didnt even want to take a chance
166	9/4/11 11:09 AM	You know I care for & love you...take a step back. I've never stopped.
Me	9/4/11 11:03 AM	Me too. But u dont love anymore. Where are we at?
166	9/4/11 11:02 AM	Not me...I still and have loved you
Me	9/4/11 11:01 AM	Exactly. That hurts.
166	9/4/11 10:58 AM	Papl...I want to work on where we're at. We went from being loved to being hated...:(
Me	9/4/11 10:49 AM	Cause u dont wana work it out. You wana lie and wash brains.
Me	9/4/11 10:44 AM	Never
166	9/4/11 10:41 AM	Let me know when you want to talk.
Me	9/4/11 10:36 AM	I wont be home, Im leaving w/people who care a little bit
Me	9/4/11 10:34 AM	What about love? U said, but ur accions not. Action, Reaction. I thought u wont text me, I said yesterday. Its hard with all love hurt towards you.
Me	9/4/11 10:28 AM	We had a bye forever yesterday. Its what u wanted. I didnt want.
166	9/4/11 10:18 AM	If you want to talk...I am going to Chandler shortly and will be at gym.
166	9/4/11 10:08 AM	I've always cared babe...you know that.
Me	9/4/11 10:05 AM	U didnt want to talk yesterday nigh and work it out in person

file://D:/joe/babea/terpHtm/Babea/Msg4Mar2011-Sep2011.html

2/22/2012