

HUMAN TRAFFICKING

OFFICE OF
ARIZONA ATTORNEY GENERAL

Mark Brnovich

www.azag.gov

2005 N Central Ave
Phoenix, AZ 85004

602.542.2123

400 W Congress
South Building, Ste. 315
Tucson, AZ 85701

520.628.6504

Outside Phoenix
or Tucson
Metro Area:

800.352.8431

Letter from Mark

Parents and law enforcement share a responsibility of working together to protect children from those who intend to do them harm. One of the most dangerous threats to children in Arizona is human trafficking. Often, when we hear about these types of horrific crimes we think that it could never happen to our family, but it is imperative to understand that human trafficking is occurring daily right here in our communities. Predators are developing new tactics to recruit children online, in our neighborhoods, and at our schools.

As your Attorney General, I want you to know we take this threat seriously. Human trafficking is more than just a crime, it is a profound tragedy for all of those who fall victim. That’s why it is vital for parents to know how to identify possible threats to their children, and how to respond if you see the warning signs.

This booklet is a great place to start; it provides helpful tips to protect your loved ones and what to do if you suspect someone is at risk of becoming a victim of human trafficking. I also invite you to access additional resources on how to safeguard your family from human trafficking at our website, www.azag.gov.

Working together, we can do a lot to keep our children safe.

Sincerely,

Mark Brnovich

ARIZONA ATTORNEY GENERAL
Mark Brnovich

Contents

What Is Human Trafficking?	1-6
How Trafficking Breaks Down.....	7
Human Trafficking vs Human Smuggling	9
Should Arizonans Be Concerned?	11
Sex Trafficking: Victims’ Stories	13
Who Can Be a Victim? How and Where Does It Happen?.....	17-22
Basic Stages of Grooming.	23
Sex Trafficking: Myth vs Reality	25
Warning Signs	27
How Can You Protect Your Children?	29-36
Responding to the Growing Issue of Sex Trafficking	37-40
What Should You Do If You Suspect Your Child May Be Involved In Human Trafficking?	41
Resources	43-44

What Is Human Trafficking?

There are TWO types of human trafficking:

Sex Trafficking Labor Trafficking

Human trafficking is a form of modern-day slavery in which traffickers use force, fraud, or coercion to control victims.

Force: Physical restraint or violence, sexual assault.

Fraud: Intentionally misleading a victim, providing false offers of employment, marriage, or a better life.

Coercion: Threats, psychological abuse, debt bondage, taking and/or destroying legal documents, abuse of the legal process.

Sex Trafficking

The Trafficking Victims Protection Act of 2000 (TVPA) defines the crime of sex trafficking as:

The recruitment, harboring, transportation, provision, or obtaining of a person for the purposes of a commercial sex act, in which the commercial sex act is induced by force, fraud, or coercion, or in which the person induced to perform such an act has not attained 18 years of age. (22 USC § 7102)

Sex trafficking is any sex act that is traded for something of value, including but not limited to:

- a place to stay
- drugs and alcohol
- money
- gifts or valuables
- food

Source: ASU Office of Sex Trafficking Intervention Research,
TRUST (Training and Resources United to Stop Trafficking)

There are approximately 78,000 male online sex ad customers in Phoenix.

Labor Trafficking

In the United States, the Trafficking Victims Protection Act of 2000 (TVPA) defines labor trafficking as:

The recruitment, harboring, transportation, provision, or obtaining of a person for labor or services, through the use of force, fraud, or coercion for the purpose of subjection to involuntary servitude, peonage, debt bondage or slavery. (22 USC § 7102(9))

Labor trafficking involves using force, fraud, or coercion to get individuals to work for little or no compensation.

This includes forced labor in underground economies and sweatshops, as well as seemingly legitimate enterprises such as restaurants, hotels, traveling sales crews, construction sites, farming, landscaping, and nail salons.

Source: U.S. Department of Justice

Human trafficking is the second largest criminal enterprise in the world.

How Trafficking Breaks Down:

The Act-Means-Purpose Model (AMP) describes the elements that must be present for an act to be considered human trafficking. Human trafficking occurs when an individual uses force, fraud, or coercion to compel a victim to perform commercial sex acts or labor services.

ACTION

RECRUITS
TRANSPORTS PROVIDES
OBTAINS / HARBORS

MEANS

FRAUD FORCE
COERCION

PURPOSE

COMMERCIAL SEX ACTS
LABOR SERVICES

Source: National Human Trafficking Resource Center

Human Trafficking VS Human Smuggling

Centers on exploitation

Involves elements of force, fraud, or coercion

Does not require crossing an international border

Persons trafficked are considered victims

Not voluntary

Human trafficking is the exploitation of a person for sex or labor. Human trafficking does not require movement or transport across borders - the exploitation is what makes the person a victim.

Centers on transportation and always involves crossing an international border

Persons are complicit in the act of smuggling, not necessarily victims

Those complicit in smuggling may eventually become victims depending on the circumstances in which they are smuggled

Human smuggling involves bringing (or attempting to bring) a person into a country in violation of immigration or other laws.

Source: Department of Homeland Security Blue Campaign

Should Arizonans Be Concerned?

Is this really a problem in our state?

Yes. Based on data gathered by the U.S. State Department, Arizona is a prime transit and destination area for both sex and labor trafficking in the United States. Sex trafficking is a high-profit, low-risk crime where the commodity, a human body, can be sold repeatedly, unlike drugs or weapons, where the product can only be sold once.

Source: TRUST (Training and Resources United to Stop Trafficking, Phoenix Police Department VICE Unit, ASU Office of Sex Trafficking Intervention Research)

The average age of entry into the sex trade in Arizona is 14 years old. Law enforcement has seen girls as young as 9 sold for sex.

Many of the factors that make our state a popular tourist destination also fuel sex trafficking, including:

- Geographic location; close proximity to the border and interstate highway networks
- Warm weather
- Home to an array of conferences and professional sporting events
- Close proximity to other tourist destinations, including Las Vegas and San Diego

Sex Trafficking:

Victims' Stories

A teenage girl was having a fight with her parents. She left the house upset and went to a neighborhood restaurant. While she was crying, an attractive man in his 20's approached her table. He was friendly, and offered to buy her dinner. After she finished eating, he suggested she stay at his place for the night to avoid her parents and "cool off." The girl agreed, and he drove her 50 miles away to a part of town where she had never been. He took her phone away from her so she was unable to contact her parents or call for help. Eventually he told her that she owed him, and he began trafficking her for sex.

Victims' Stories

A teen girl in the Phoenix metro area became a victim of human trafficking when she met a woman who promised her something her family couldn't provide. The girl had wanted a cell phone for as long as she could remember and she was jealous of the other students at her school who already had them. The girl met a woman who promised to give her a cell phone, and in turn, the chance to fit in at school. After she gave the girl the phone, the woman demanded payment in the form of sex acts with men at a nearby apartment. The woman threatened to take away the phone and tell the girl's mother what she had done if she did not do as the woman demanded. Day after day, the teen went to the hotel and performed sex acts in exchange for keeping her cell phone and her secret.

Occasionally, the girl was able to talk her way out of these situations, but ultimately she was forced to do things no one should be required to do.

Throughout the month that the teen was forced into this activity, she still maintained good grades and continued attending school regularly. She even came home in time to meet her curfew and managed to keep up appearances, so it was nearly impossible for her mother to know that her daughter was involved in something so dangerous.

Fortunately, the teen's traffickers were eventually caught and she was removed from the situation. The girl's mother was completely shocked that her daughter had been victimized for weeks, and she was left looking for answers and ways to help her daughter. Unfortunately, there are still barriers to victims seeking help in dealing with the trauma of being trafficked.

Who Can Be a Victim?

Anyone can be a victim of sex trafficking, including men, women, and children.

In 2017, an estimated 1 out of 7 endangered runaways reported to the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children were likely child sex trafficking victims. Of those, 88% were in the care of social services or foster care when they ran.

90% of children trafficked in the United States are U.S. citizens.
50% of trafficking victims are under the age of 16.

Sources: U.S. Department of Justice, National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime

The average age a girl enters the commercial sex trade is 12-14 years old. For boys, it's even younger, just 11-13 years old.

Where Does It Happen?

Traffickers, also known as pimps, recruit their victims through a variety of means, including:

Social media: websites such as Facebook, Instagram, and chatrooms like Omegle, YesIChat, and E-Chat

Places: shopping malls, bus stops, school, after school events, parties, shelters, parks, and anywhere that teens frequent 78,000 men in Phoenix are online sex ad customers.

Over 300 ads for adult services are placed each day in Phoenix – with an estimated 20% for girls under 18.

Recruitment Locations

How Does It Happen?

Traffickers may use psychological manipulation, deception, physical violence, threats, and/or sexual assault to get their victim to feel vulnerable, trapped, and powerless.

Oftentimes, the pimp will threaten to harm people close to their victim, such as family members or friends, as a way to isolate their victim and maintain their compliance.

They may also take suggestive photos or videos of their victims to use as both blackmail and advertisements for sexual services.

Within 36-48 hours of being on the run, many runaways will be approached by a pimp, trafficker, or perpetrator looking to sexually exploit them.

Sources: ASU Office of Sex Trafficking Intervention Research, The McCain Institute, Thorn

Victims are often recruited by a “boyfriend” or “girlfriend,” but may be solicited by a friend, peer, family member, or gang member.

75% of underage sex trafficking victims said they had been advertised or sold online.

Basic Stages of Grooming

for Sexual Exploitation

TARGETING: Traffickers target victims who have some noticeable vulnerability: emotional neediness, low self-confidence, or economic stress.

GAINING TRUST & INFORMATION: Obtaining information about the victim is key. This can be done through casual conversations with the victim or with parents. Traffickers often mix well with other adults.

“Up to this point, they had never tried to touch me, never made me feel uncomfortable or unsafe, or that they would harm me.”

FILLING A NEED: The information gained allows the trafficker to fill a need in the victim’s life, making the victim dependent on them in some way: buying gifts, being a friend, beginning a romantic relationship, or providing drugs and alcohol.

ISOLATION: The trafficker creates times to be alone with the victim. The trafficker will also begin taking a major role in the victim’s life and will attempt to distance the victim from friends and family.

ABUSE BEGINS: The trafficker begins claiming that gifts or services given to the victim must be repaid, whether it be money, drugs, car rides, or mobile phones. In most cases, the trafficker demands sex as the method of repayment.

“I trusted them, they were my friends as I saw it, until one night my main perpetrator raped me, quite brutally as well, in front of a number of people.”

MAINTAIN CONTROL: In many cases the trafficker maintains control of the victim through threats, violence, fear, or blackmail.

“Well if I didn’t go out and see them they are going to get my mum and are going to rape her.”

Sex Trafficking: Myth VS Reality

Human trafficking only occurs within and between foreign countries.

Human trafficking happens everywhere, including within the United States and does not require crossing an international border.

Human trafficking involves a form of travel, transportation, or movement across borders.

Trafficking does not require transportation and is not the same as human smuggling. However, human smuggling can become human trafficking.

Victims will immediately ask for help or assistance.

Victims often do not seek help and may not self-identify as victims of crime.

Victims always come from situations of poverty or from small rural areas.

Poverty alone is not a single causal factor or universal indicator of being a victim. Anyone can be a victim, regardless of their socioeconomic status, location, or gender.

Warning Signs

A victim of sex trafficking may:

- talk about an older boyfriend/girlfriend
- have expensive gifts from a new friend / boyfriend / girlfriend
- be inexplicably absent from school
- run away from home
- show signs of physical injury such as bruises or fractures
- be inappropriately dressed
- indicate signs of drug addiction
- exhibit malnutrition
- reference traveling to other cities
- exhibit changes in demeanor: fear, anxiety, depression, nervousness
- have a new tattoo of a person's name, barcode, or other strange symbol

*It is important to note that this is by no means a comprehensive list of all signs of human trafficking, nor are all youth who exhibit these signs trafficking victims. Rather, this list is best used as a guide to help determine if further action is appropriate.

How Can You Protect Your Children?

Spot red flags. Foster open lines of communication with your children and know what to do if you suspect they may be in danger or involved in sex trafficking.

Make it a habit to communicate with your child. Ask questions about their internet use and who they talk to online. Set aside time each day to ask them what is happening at school, in their life, and with their extracurricular activities.

Know the people in your child's life, meet their friends and get to know their friends' parent(s)/guardian(s).

Ask questions about what your child's friends are up to. If your child makes a new friend, be sure to meet that new friend and their family.

When you see instances of "stranger danger" in pop culture, be it television, movies, or news articles, point out those examples to your child and discuss the scenarios together.

Talk to your children about healthy and unhealthy relationships. Help them understand that sometimes a boyfriend or girlfriend may seem great, when in reality they may be displaying unusual or dangerous behavior.

Take notice if your child suddenly has new clothing, jewelry, or other possessions. If they can't reasonably explain how they acquired these items, it may be a sign that something is not right.

If your child ever tells you that they may be a victim of human trafficking or any crime that puts their welfare in danger, try to remain calm and contact your local police department. Your child will be more likely to tell you what has happened if you have a calm demeanor and they don't feel like they may get in trouble for what has happened.

Talking with Kids and Teens about Internet Safety

New apps and websites pop up every day, making it difficult to stay on top of what kids and teens are accessing on the internet. Below are tips for staying ahead of the game when it comes to the internet, including how to make sure your child isn't accessing dangerous material online.

- Establish household rules regarding internet use, and make sure that parental controls are set up on all devices.
- Familiarize yourself with the websites and apps your child uses.
- Both you and your child should understand: how the app or website works, the age requirements, and the various capabilities it may have (photo sharing, video, messaging, etc.).
- Over half (56%) of kids sexually solicited online were asked to send a picture; 27% of the pictures were sexually-oriented in nature.

Source: "Online Victimization of Youth: Five Years Later," published in 2006 by the University of New Hampshire Crimes Against Children Research Center, the U.S. Department of Justice Office of Juvenile and Delinquency Prevention, and National Center for Missing & Exploited Children.

1 in 7 youth online have received a sexual solicitation or were approached over the internet. 56% of the youth who received solicitations did not tell anyone.

If your child/student uses social media:

- Communicate with them about their experiences.
- Let them know that most social media sites have blocking or reporting capabilities to report any harassing or unwanted contact.
- Explain to them why they should not display or give out personal information and why it is dangerous.
- Insist that your child/student never meet anyone in person that they have communicated with solely online.

Helpful Conversation Starters

It can be uncomfortable to start a conversation about serious and difficult topics, including human trafficking. Here are a few helpful guidelines to get the conversation started.

Ask: What do you know about “trafficking?”

No adult should ever ask a young person to do things that make them uncomfortable or demand sex in exchange for clothes, jewelry, money, food, or a place to stay. When a situation like this occurs, the adult is taking advantage of that young person, the victim, even if the child seemed like they wanted to do what they were asked.

Ask: What would you do if you were in a dangerous situation and it wasn’t safe to call 911?

Safe Place operates TXT 4 HELP, which can be used in situations where calling 911 may pose immediate danger.

Helpful Conversation Starters

Ask: Do you know where you can go or what to do if someone approaches you?

If your child is in immediate danger, they can always call 911 or get to a safe location to call for help. Many businesses and organizations also participate in Safe Place, which means anyone in crisis or in danger can go there for help. Every QuikTrip gas station and light rail station is a Safe Place, in addition to many hospitals, police stations, libraries, fire stations, and banks. All Safe Place locations display the yellow sign below.

How Does It Work?

Step 1 A young person enters a Safe Place and asks for help.

Step 2 The site employee finds a comfortable place for the youth to wait while they call the licensed Safe Place agency.

Step 3 Within 20-30 minutes, a qualified Safe Place volunteer or agency staff member arrives to talk with the youth and, if necessary, provide transportation to the agency.

Step 4 Once at the agency, counselors meet with the youth and provide support. Agency staff makes sure the youth and their family receive the help and professional services they need.

Responding To the Growing Issue of Sex Trafficking

Over the last several years, the state of Arizona has made significant strides toward both eradicating human trafficking and educating law enforcement officials and civilians about the very real and dangerous impact human trafficking has on the people of Arizona.

One of the major accomplishments we have made as a state is the passage of a new law in 2014, which targets those who purchase sex in Arizona and individuals who force victims to provide those services. The law, HB2454, addressed the four main groups that are involved in human trafficking: johns, traffickers, advertisers, and victims. HB2454 increased penalties for johns and traffickers, created new laws for advertisers, and instituted new protections for victims. On the next page, you will find a summary of HB2454 and the new sentencing guidelines for perpetrators of this crime.

HB 2454 — Effective July 21, 2014

JOHNS

Raised the presumptive sentencing for such cases mentioned above and subjects all offenders who knew “or should have known” to a Class 2 Felony.

TRAFFICKERS

Creates a higher sentencing range for traffickers in cases involving minors that increases the presumptive sentence:

From 10.5 years to 13.5 years for a first offense,

From 15.75 years to 24 years for a trafficker with a prior felony conviction,

From 28 years to 31 years for a trafficker with two or more prior felonies.

ADVERTISERS

Visual depiction of a minor in an ad for prostitution is now a Class 2 Felony.

Required licensed escorts, escort agencies, massage therapists, and massage therapy businesses to include license number in any advertisement.

VICTIMS

Protects victims by limiting the amount of identifying information released in court documents and to the general public. Adds child prostitution and sex trafficking to list of acts that allows anti-racketeering fund monies to be used for victim services.

Working Together To Make Our Neighborhoods Safer:

A Community Response to Human Trafficking

Beyond talking to your children about the issue of human trafficking and monitoring their internet use, there are many steps your neighborhood or parent group can take collectively to make sure your children stay safe.

Education: You have already read the important information provided in this booklet about the dangers of human trafficking and its prevalence in our state. This is a great start, but educating your network of fellow parents, school officials, and neighbors is the next step to making sure everyone is involved in protecting Arizona's children.

Get involved: Join a parent group, PTO, or find another opportunity to be involved in your child's school. This is a great way to find out what other parents and educators are hearing and observing.

Observe: Having open eyes and ears in your community is essential to making sure that suspicious activity in your area doesn't go unreported or unrecognized. As individuals, we aren't always going to be able to notice everything that goes on in our neighborhoods. Joining a local Block Watch and encouraging others to do the same will ensure that there is a collective effort to keep our kids safe.

If your neighborhood doesn't have a Block Watch program currently, you can always start one! Contact your local police department for more information on how to get started.

You can always request a presentation about human trafficking from the Arizona Attorney General's Office, our Community Outreach division will present to any group and can go anywhere within the state of Arizona. There is never a charge for this service. You can also request copies of this booklet for those who are interested.

Requests for presentations and publications can be made at <https://www.azag.gov/outreach> or by calling 602.542.2123.

What Should You Do If You Suspect Your Child May Be Involved In Human Trafficking?

The first thing you should do if someone is in immediate danger is call 911.

You can also call the National Human Trafficking Resource Center hotline at 1-888-373-7888

Or text HELP to: BeFree (233733).

The National Human Trafficking Resource Center Hotline is a national, toll-free hotline, available to answer calls from anywhere in the United States, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, in more than 200 languages.

If you suspect your child may be a victim of human trafficking, try to remain calm and talk to them about what they have experienced. Try to avoid interrogating them, as this often makes victims feel that it is their fault.

Encourage your kids who have cell phones to program BeFree (233733) into their contacts. If they are ever in a situation where they cannot make a phone call, texting HELP to this hotline can connect them to people who can help.

Resources

www.polarisproject.org
Text INFO or HELP to BeFree (233733)

humantraffickinghotline.org

socialwork.asu.edu/stir

www.dhs.gov/blue-campaign

www.sharedhope.org

www.phxdreamcenter.org

www.trustaz.org

www.nationalsafeplace.org
Text the word “safe” and your current location (city/state/zip) to 69866

umom.org

Community Outreach and Education

For more information contact

Community Outreach and Education,
Arizona Attorney General’s Office

2005 North Central Avenue
Phoenix, AZ 85004

Phoenix

602-542-2123

Outside Phoenix Metro Area

1-800-352-8431

communityservices@azag.gov

www.azag.gov/outreach

Publications available from the Arizona Attorney General’s Office include:

- Top Consumer Scams
- Consumer Guide for Young Adults
- Internet Safety
- Life Care Planning Packets
- Senior Tool Kit
- Scam Alerts

Presentations available from the Attorney General’s Office include:

- Human Trafficking for Students and Parents
- Consumer Scams
- Task Force Against Senior Abuse (TASA)
- Life Care Planning
- Internet Safety for Parents and Students
- Anti-Bullying for Parents and Students
- Suicide Prevention for Parents and Students
- Opioid Awareness and Prevention for Parents and Students

HUMAN TRAFFICKING

OFFICE OF
ARIZONA ATTORNEY GENERAL

Mark Brnovich

www.azag.gov

2005 N Central Ave
Phoenix, AZ 85004

602.542.2123

400 W Congress
South Building, Ste. 315
Tucson, AZ 85701

520.628.6504

Outside Phoenix
or Tucson
Metro Area:

800.352.8431

Letter from Mark

Human trafficking is one of the most alarming and devastating crimes that often impacts teenagers. Many people think trafficking only involves people in remote locations around the world, but the shocking reality is that it is happening right here in Arizona. Victims may be targeted by predators when they least expect it, online, at shopping malls, and in our neighborhood schools.

Human traffickers don’t care about your gender, race, or socioeconomic background - they look to recruit and exploit vulnerable victims wherever they can.

As Attorney General, I have made it a priority for my office to help protect you and every Arizona teenager from these predators. But the best protection is for you to be educated about human trafficking to ensure that you never fall victim to it. It is important for us to have an open and honest conversation about this threat and what we can do to prevent it from spreading.

This booklet provides an introduction to avoiding human trafficking. I strongly encourage you to read and discuss it with your family and friends. You can also go to www.azag.gov to find more ways to be safe.

Sincerely,

Mark Brnovich

ARIZONA ATTORNEY GENERAL
Mark Brnovich

Contents

What Is Human Trafficking? 1-6

How Trafficking Breaks Down. 7

Sex Trafficking: Myth vs Reality 9

Sex Trafficking: Victims’ Stories 11

Who Can Be a Victim of Sex Trafficking? 15

The Trafficker 17

How Do Traffickers Find Their Victims? 19-24

How to Keep Yourself Safe Online 25

What Should You Do If Someone Approaches You? 27

Warning Signs 29

What Should You Do If You or Someone You Know Has Become Involved In Human Trafficking? 31

Resources 33-34

What Is Human Trafficking?

There are TWO types of human trafficking:

Sex Trafficking Labor Trafficking

Human trafficking is a form of modern-day slavery in which traffickers use force, fraud, or coercion to control victims.

Force: Physical restraint or violence, sexual assault.

Fraud: Intentionally misleading a victim, providing false offers of employment, marriage, or a better life.

Coercion: Threats, psychological abuse, debt bondage, taking and/or destroying legal documents, abuse of the legal process.

Sex Trafficking

No person should ever ask a young person to do things that make them uncomfortable or demand sex in exchange for clothes, jewelry, money, food, or a place to stay. When this occurs, the adult is taking advantage of the young person, even if the victim seemed like they willingly did what they were asked. If the victim is under the age of 18, a request or demand for sex in exchange for something is considered sex trafficking. If the victim is over 18, the perpetrator must use force, fraud, or coercion for this situation to be considered trafficking.

Sex trafficking is any sex act that is traded for something of value, including but not limited to:

- money
- food
- a place to stay
- drugs and alcohol
- gifts or valuables

Every 30 seconds
another person becomes a victim of human trafficking.

Source: Building Partnerships to Eradicate Modern-Day Slavery Report of Recommendations to the President, April 2013

What Is Labor Trafficking?

Labor traffickers use false promises of high-paying jobs, education, or opportunity of travel to manipulate a victim into working in unsafe, dangerous conditions for little or no pay.

The most common forms of labor trafficking include working as domestic servants, on farms, or as factory workers. But victims of labor trafficking may be employed anywhere, including door-to-door sales, restaurants, construction, carnivals, or health and beauty services.

Since 2007, the National Human Trafficking Resource Center by Polaris has received over 5,300 reports of labor trafficking.

According to a 2013 study conducted by San Diego State University, at least 31 percent of undocumented, Spanish-speaking migrant workers have experienced illegal labor trafficking.

Modern-day slavery in America

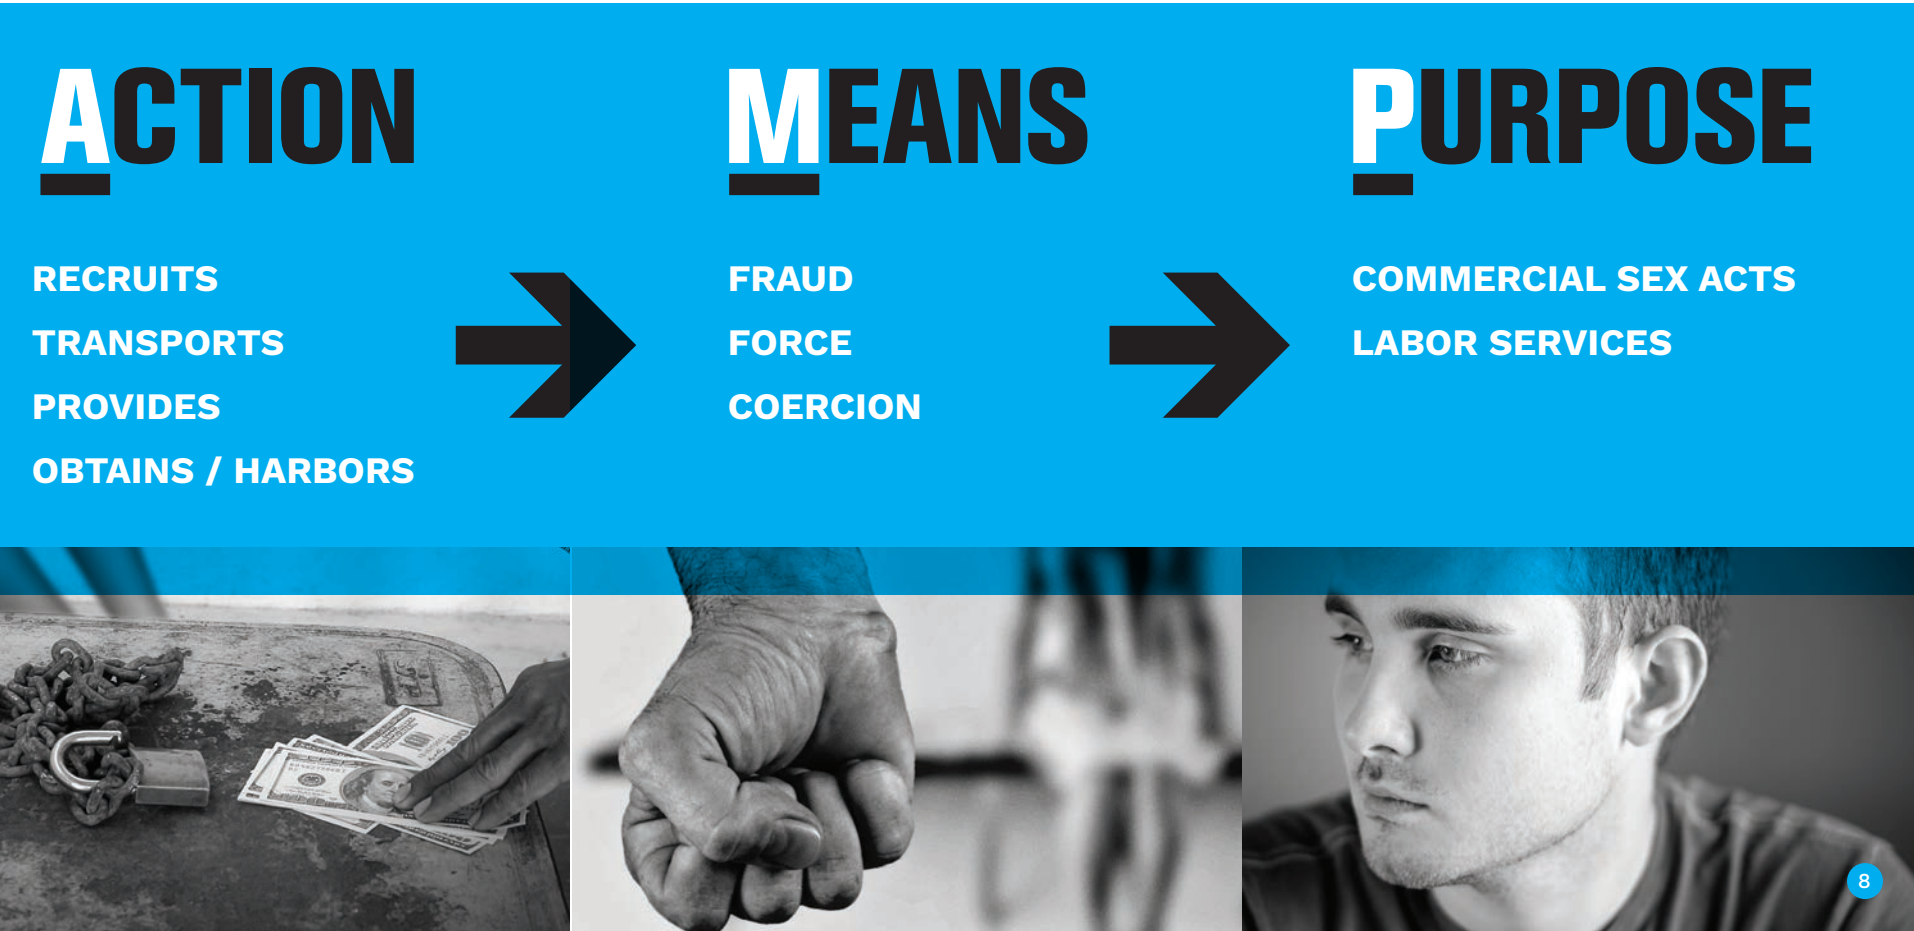

Source: UC Berkeley

How Trafficking Breaks Down:

The Act-Means-Purpose Model (AMP) describes the elements that must be present for an act to be considered human trafficking. Human trafficking occurs when an individual uses force, fraud, or coercion to compel a victim to perform commercial sex acts or labor services.

Source: National Human Trafficking Resource Center

Sex Trafficking: Myth VS Reality

Human trafficking only occurs within and between foreign countries.

Human trafficking happens everywhere, including within the United States and does not require crossing an international border.

Human trafficking involves a form of travel, transportation, or movement across borders.

Trafficking does not require transportation and is not the same as human smuggling. However, human smuggling can become human trafficking.

Victims will immediately ask for help or assistance.

Victims often do not seek immediate help and may not self-identify as victims of crime.

Victims always come from situations of poverty or from small rural areas.

Poverty alone is not a single causal factor or universal indicator of being a victim. Anyone can be a victim, regardless of their socioeconomic status, location, or gender.

Sex Trafficking:

Victims' Stories

A teenage girl was having a fight with her parents. She left the house upset and went to a neighborhood restaurant. While she was crying, an attractive man in his 20's approached her table. He was friendly, and offered to buy her dinner. After she finished eating, he suggested she stay at his place for the night to avoid her parents and "cool off". The girl agreed, and he drove her 50 miles away to a part of town where she had never been. He took her phone away from her so she was unable to contact her parents or call for help. Eventually he told her that she owed him, and he began trafficking her for sex.

Victims' Stories

A teen girl in the Phoenix metro area became a victim of human trafficking when she met a woman who promised her something her family couldn't provide. The girl had wanted a cell phone for as long as she could remember and she was jealous of the other students at her school who already had them. The girl met a woman who promised to give her a cell phone, and in turn, the chance to fit in at school. After she gave the girl the phone, the woman demanded payment in the form of sex acts with men at a nearby apartment. The woman threatened to take away the phone and tell the girl's mother what she had done if she did not do as the woman demanded. Day after day, the teen went to the hotel and performed sex acts in exchange for keeping her cell phone and her secret.

Occasionally, the girl was able to talk her way out of these situations, but ultimately she was forced to do things no one should be required to do.

Throughout the month that the teen was forced into this activity, she still maintained good grades and continued attending school regularly. She even came home in time to meet her curfew and managed to keep up appearances, so it was nearly impossible for her mother to know that her daughter was involved in something so dangerous.

Fortunately, the teen's traffickers were eventually caught and she was removed from the situation. The girl's mother was completely shocked that her daughter had been victimized for weeks. She was left looking for answers and ways to help her daughter. Unfortunately, there are still barriers to victims seeking help in dealing with the trauma of being trafficked.

Who Can Be a Victim of Sex Trafficking?

Human trafficking is a crime that can happen to anyone, anywhere, at any time. It affects boys and girls, rural and urban communities, and it doesn't discriminate based on good grades or popularity.

Simple answer: Anyone!

The Trafficker

Anyone can be a trafficker, including both men and women of varying personality types and backgrounds. Another word for a sex trafficker is a pimp, and upon first meeting one of these pimps, most victims are not alarmed or afraid. A trafficker's goal when he or she first meets a victim is to make that person feel special and play to their ego. This makes it difficult for a victim to spot a trafficker because the trafficker doesn't usually seem scary or threatening, but instead usually exhibits the opposite behavior.

A trafficker will often act like a loving boyfriend or girlfriend, giving lots of gifts, and promising the victim a better life. However, over time, the trafficker may shift toward what we call "Gorilla Pimp" behavior. Once a trafficker has earned the victim's trust, he or she can begin to exhibit dangerous conduct, often using violence, threats, intimidation, and kidnapping to force victims into further sex trafficking.

Below is an outline of the different characteristics of the two types of pimp: the Romeo and the Gorilla.

Romeo Pimp:

- Acts like a doting "boyfriend" or "girlfriend"
- Gives gifts
- Is romantic
- Makes victims feel special
- Charms and flatters
- Promises a happier life

Gorilla Pimp:

- Abuses and intimidates to assert control
- Uses violence
- Threatens the victim
- Uses force, kidnapping
- Uses blackmail
- Drugs the victim

Sex traffickers exploit an average of 4-6 victims each year, and can make $150,000-$200,000 per victim.

Source: U.S. Justice Department, National Center for Missing and Exploited Children

How Do Traffickers Find Their Victims?

Traffickers often go to highly populated places, such as gas stations or shopping malls, to find their victims. Parties, bus stops, schools, shelters, and parks are also locations frequented by traffickers.

Once a trafficker engages with a target, they continue the grooming process to earn the trust of their victim.

Traffickers may try to convince their victim that they can give them a better life, including new clothes, vacations, technology, money, or a job.

Many victims become romantically involved with someone who then forces or manipulates them into sex trafficking. Some are forced into sex trafficking by their parents or other family members.

Less than ¼ of child abductions are by a stranger, with more girls being abducted than boys. Source: AZICAC

While sex trafficking may begin with an abduction, it is more common for victims to begin meeting with their trafficker willingly. The victim may choose to “date” this individual, go to their house, or attend a party with them.

There are also examples of predators falsely promising modeling jobs and making plans to meet their victim for a photoshoot. But when their victim shows up for the photoshoot, the trafficker prevents them from leaving or forces them to commit sexual acts.

Recruitment Locations

Malls

Parties

Schools

Libraries

Shelters

Online

Abandoned
Buildings

Bus Stops &
Bus Rides

Juvenile Detention Centers

Parks

A Top Recruiting Tool: Social Media

Pimps and traffickers make accounts on social networking websites, such as Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram to ‘friend’ young boys and girls.

They may initiate meeting up or they may use social media to get more information about the lives of their target, including phone numbers, addresses, and identification of friends and family.

Social media may also allow traffickers to get a better understanding of their target’s interests, what they like and don’t like, and how they interact with the people in their lives.

Traffickers’ social media accounts often look very legitimate. However, traffickers are usually hiding who they really are. It’s common for them to tailor their profile to trick young people into believing that they are speaking with someone of similar age. For example, you may receive a friend request from someone who says they are 17, when in reality they may be a 45-year-old adult who is using someone else’s pictures or information.

How To Keep Yourself Safe Online

- Keep your profiles on private and do not accept any users that you do not know.
- Ask: “Have I ever met them in the real world?” to decide if you should friend them or not.
- Never give out your phone number or other contact information to any strangers that you meet.
- Be careful what personal information you put online or on social media. This includes where you go to school, your hometown, and your birth date. Think twice about the photos you post.
- Disable “location services” on your electronic devices so that your whereabouts aren’t public information.
- If a friend has personal, sensitive information about you online, ask them to take it down.

“Online Victimization of Youth: Five Years Later,” published in 2006 by the University of New Hampshire Crimes Against Children Research Center, the U.S. Department of Justice Office of Juvenile and Delinquency Prevention, and National Center for Missing & Exploited Children

1 in 7 youth online have received a sexual solicitation or approach over the internet.

Online Victimization of Youth: Five Years Later, 2006

- If a user will not stop requesting you, posting inappropriate pictures, or engaging in unwanted contact with you, tell an adult immediately. All social media sites have the ability to report users. If someone is bothering you, report them.
- Be careful what you post online. It is a myth that what you post online can be deleted. Once it’s online, you can’t take it back. If you wouldn’t feel comfortable with your parents, teacher, principal, or future employer seeing it, it has no place being posted on the internet.

What Should You Do If Someone Approaches You?

Traffickers can approach you anytime, anywhere. It's important to be prepared if one of these predators tries to meet you in the real world. If someone is making you feel uncomfortable, or if a stranger starts offering you gifts or promises of exciting opportunities, these are red flags. It is important not to ignore these signs – if something feels wrong or sounds too good to be true, it probably is. It's always important to tell an adult that you trust if a stranger approached you, even if the person seemed harmless and contacted you in a public place.

- Never go anywhere alone, and always tell someone where you are going. No one is ever too old to use the buddy system.
- If someone is making you feel uncomfortable or unsafe, do your best to find an adult you trust. If you can't find an adult that you know, get to a safe location as soon as possible.
- Program the phone numbers of adults you trust into your cell phone, or write them down and keep them with you at all times. You can also include the National Human Trafficking Hotline number, which is answered 24 hours a day, 7 days a week: 1-888-373-7888.
- Find a location that participates in the Safe Place program. Hospitals, libraries, police stations, banks, and many businesses are participants. If you go to one of these locations, they can get you help. All Safe Place locations display the yellow sign below on the outside of their building:

Warning Signs

A victim of sex trafficking may:

- talk about an older boyfriend/girlfriend
- have expensive gifts from a new friend / boyfriend / girlfriend
- be inexplicably absent from school
- run away from home
- show signs of physical injury such as bruises or fractures
- be inappropriately dressed
- indicate signs of drug addiction
- exhibit malnutrition
- reference traveling to other cities
- exhibit changes in demeanor: fear, anxiety, depression, nervousness
- have a new tattoo of a person's name, barcode, or other strange symbol

*It is important to note that this is by no means a comprehensive list of all signs of human trafficking, nor are all youth who exhibit these signs trafficking victims. Rather, this list is best used as a guide to help determine if further action is appropriate.

Within 36-48 hours of being on the run, many runaways will be approached by a pimp, trafficker, or perpetrator looking to sexually exploit them.

What should you do if you or someone you know has become involved in human trafficking?

The best thing you can do if someone is in immediate danger is call 911.

You can also call the National Human Trafficking Resource Center hotline at 1-888-373-7888

Or text HELP to: BeFree (233733).

You should also report what you know to a trusted adult in your life. This could be your parent, guardian, teacher, or a police officer.

Resources

www.polarisproject.org
Text INFO or HELP to BeFree (233733)

humantraffickinghotline.org

socialwork.asu.edu/stir

www.dhs.gov/blue-campaign

www.sharedhope.org

www.phxdreamcenter.org

www.trustaz.org

www.nationalsafeplace.org
Text the word "safe" and your current location (city/state/zip) to 69866

umom.org

Community Outreach and Education

For more information contact

Community Outreach and Education, Arizona Attorney General's Office

2005 North Central Avenue
Phoenix, AZ 85004

Publications available from the Arizona Attorney General's Office include:

- Top Consumer Scams
- Consumer Guide for Young Adults
- Internet Safety
- Life Care Planning Packets
- Senior Tool Kit
- Scam Alerts

Phoenix

602-542-2123

Outside Phoenix Metro Area

1-800-352-8431

communityservices@azag.gov

www.azag.gov/outreach

Presentations available from the Arizona Attorney General's Office include:

- Human Trafficking for Students and Parents
- Consumer Scams
- Task Force Against Senior Abuse (TASA)
- Life Care Planning
- Internet Safety for Parents and Students
- Anti-Bullying for Parents and Students
- Suicide Prevention for Parents and Students
- Opioid Awareness and Prevention for Parents and Students